Once more we have a stirking illustra-tion of the effect of the "deally parallel." This is neatly produced by placing side by side the utterances of two Presidents touching the subject of removals and ap-

But the intent of Congress was in great measure defeated by the practice of the department, so that in West Virginia alone thousands of claims believed to be meritorious and estimated to amount to more than a million of dollars, were disallowed because the claimants had not a fair chance. This fell heavily upon farmers whose personal property had been taken by the armes of the United States for the defense of the Union.

It is proposed now to remedy this wrong by doing for those farmers just what was done for other claimants by the amendment of 1880. If after a fair hearing their claims cannot be shown to be valid, it is of course expected that they will be disallowed and that decision accepted as final. The measure, therefore, is in no sense a "raid on the Treesury," for the laborers has been of inestinable value over-production exists and cripples the donswing power of the whole, or the whole consuming power of the whole, or the waste of the consuming power of inestinably true that in past years immigration has been of inestinable value as an element in American industrial progress, but it cannot be said now, and probably not to any great extent in the univer, that America is the home of the oppressed of all nations. He Pulled the President out of Bed.

Washington Letter in the Gleveland Leader.

While his father was President young John Van Buren visited England, and, as the son of the President of the United States, he received great attention. He dined with the Queen, who was then a young girl, where his superior grace of manner, fine conversational powers and wittleisms made him appear to greater advantage than the titled flunkeys who were around her Majesty. He attended one of the balls at Buckingham Palace and danced with her, and the story was told that her Majesty ceame very sweet on him. It was the incident that gave him the cognomen of "Pricee John." There was another story in circulation about him which illustrates his want of special reversence for his father. The old gentleman and John had a habit of lying in bed late in the morning, Finally one day the former said to the son that a reform must be instituted—that both must rise earlier. The hopeful agreed, and singgested that the wash of special reverses.

This was agreed to, John was out all the following night on a "bum" and did not reach home until the next morning about five. He went to his father's room and took hold if him for the purpose of pulling him out of bed. The statier's room and took hold of him for the purpose of pulling him out of bed. The old gentleman protested against being disturbed, saying he had not had sufficient sleep. "Look here, Governor, it was your own proposition that we should ifstitute a reform in regard to lying in bed so late. Here I am up at your request and you won't fulfill your part of the sgreement. Remember, the one who got up first was to pull the other out of bed. So now get in Friedman the other out of bed. So now get in Gath! This young seamp made the President of the United States get up in spite of himself. After seeing the old gentleman dress himself, the rascal eneaged to his own room and was soon in his bed asleep. The story go out by John telling it on his father to a lot of boon companions. John afterward became a famous lawyer and politician. He was one of the most eloquent speakers I ever heard.

Messrs. Lord & Thomas, of Chicago, th well-known and popular advertising agents, are about to move into new quarters, which are so spacious, so elegant, and so original and novel in their appointments, that they deserve more than a passing

This beautifully lighted room is unbroken by partitions, save a private office in one corner, thus bringing the entire working force of about saxly clerks into one spacious room, certainly the largest office of any advertising agency in the country, if not the larges business office of any kind on the continent.
